

developing quality relationships in churches and communities

Wednesday 22 November 7-9pm

Jesus said, "I give you a new commandment, that you love one another. Just as I have loved you, you also should love one another. By this everyone will know that you are my disciples, if you have love for one another." (John 13:34-5)

In a world where there is so much divided opinion, belief and values and relational disconnection there is a pressing need for our churches to bear witness to our interrelatedness and to demonstrate the kind of relationships which Jesus intended for us.

This 2-hour online workshop aims to enable all members of church to explore the development of quality relationships from a Christian perspective, considering the call to follow Jesus, the command to love one another and participate in God's mission of reconciliation.

It will consider what quality relationships look like and what obstructs and diminishes them. The new commandment of John 13:34-35 will be central to the discussions as the workshop explores loving the way Jesus loves, the purpose of doing so and the challenge of loving the body of Christ.

We encourage and welcome individuals as well as church groups to come along together, e.g. home groups, pastoral teams, welcome teams.

A workshop booklet will be available for all participants.

Cost £15 members; £20 non-members
